Phillips' Story Too Full of Holes to Hold Water,

Frequently when alleged robberies ar eported and thoroughly investigated it evelops that there was no holdup at all, but that the man complaining had been gambling or otherwise getting septrated from his money and the holdup arated from his money and the holdup tale is told to deceive the good wife at home. A case of this character came to the attention of the police Thursday when J. A. Phillips was taken to police headquarters and locked up pending further investigation. Phillips rushed up to Patrolman Wire and declared that three thugs had way-laid and robbed him. The man was considerably battered up and claimed he lost money and jewelry. When the case was investigated it was learned, so the police say, that Phillips had been out with a woman for several hours and had given her money and jewelry. Then, it is alleged, he began beating the woman and she cried for help. Threemen, whose names were not learned, hastened to the woman's assistance and gave Phillips a sound thrashing. The man finally admitted that he told the holdup story to deceive his wife.

FOR A MUNICIPAL PLANT.

Citizens of Murray, Midvals and Sandy Propose to Unite on Power Scheme,

There is a movement on foot amon the citizens of Murray, Midvale and Sandy, to have the municipalities own and operate their own electric light and power plants. For economical purposes, it is possible that the three towns may unite and build and operate a big plant jointly. The great present drawback is lack of funds.

Sandy has electric lights, but this is furnished by an outside concern. Its water supply comes from Draper, The city council there has thus far taken no action toward the installation of an electric system, but Mayer W. D. Kuhre and others connected with the council are interested.

The city of Murray owns its own water distributing system. The deal whereby the smelter city took over the system from the Progress company was consummated last month, the cost being about $27,900. and operate their own electric light
